Third Joint Meeting

THE CONFERENCE

This third joint meeting of the Society for Pentecostal Studies (its 37th annual meeting) and the Wesleyan Theological Society (its 43rd annual meeting) convenes on March 13-15, 2008, at Duke University Divinity School in Durham, North Carolina.

The theme of this conference, “Sighs, Signs, and Significance: Pentecostal and Wesleyan Explorations of Science and Creation,” will marshal the resources of both societies to reflect theologically about creation and the world of science that deeply shapes every aspect of our lives. Pentecostals and Wesleyans affirm that God is creator, and that in God we live, and move, and have our being. The two theological traditions also acknowledge that science provides significant hypotheses and data with which Christians must work to understand their experiences and to articulate well their affirmations about the world God created. Yet there has been little sustained engagement within or between these traditions with the theological questions raised by science. This joint meeting addresses this deficit.

The plenary speakers approach these topics from various perspectives. We welcome to the Wesleyan Theological Society (WTS) and the Society for Pentecostal Studies (SPS) Professor Jürgen Moltmann (Tübingen University) who has long worked at the intersection of theology of creation, science, and theology of the Holy Spirit. We also welcome Harold Koenig, MD (Duke Medical School), who will speak to the topic of religion, spirituality, and health.

In his plenary address, WTS representative, Randy Maddox (Duke Divinity School), retrieves insights from John Wesley and early Methodism to articulate a contemporary theology of creation. SPS representative, James K. A. Smith (Calvin College), explores in his plenary address how a charismatic worldview informs work in theology and science. A distinguished panel will interact with Professor Moltmann on the interface of science, theology, and culture in a plenary session. The meeting will culminate with the presidential addresses for both societies: Diane Leclerc of WTS and Terry Cross of SPS.

Over 200 papers, panels, and presentations will be offered in parallel sessions, symposia, and additional meetings. Worship, receptions, morning prayer sessions, working-lunch committee meetings, business meetings, and Saturday-evening banquets (one for each society) are integral components of the program. Time apart from the sessions encourages attendees from both societies to become acquainted with one another and to share their scholarly interests. Attendees also enjoy discounted prices on a variety of books and other products exhibited by vendors who underwrite various meeting activities.

As the spiritual center of a great research university, Duke Divinity School is the embodiment of Duke University’s motto: Eruditio et Religio – Knowledge and Faith. Founded in 1926 as the first of the university’s graduate professional schools, the Divinity School attracts students from around the nation and around the globe. One of 13 seminaries founded and supported by the United Methodist Church, the school has from its beginnings been ecumenical in aspiration, teaching and practice. With many diverse theological perspectives, students find common ground through immersion in Scripture and the church’s tradition for addressing the challenges of faith in today’s world. In recent years, Duke Divinity School has emerged as a leading school of theology rooted in the Wesleyan tradition, as attested by its Center for Methodist and Wesleyan Studies taking the senior editorial lead in producing the Bi-Centennial Edition of the Works of John Wesley.

Two program committees worked to organize the 2008 joint meeting. The following contributed from SPS: Amos Yong (Regent University School of Divinity), Program Chair; Sang-Ehil Han (Church of God Theological Seminary), Asian American; Lee Roy

Martin (Church of God Theological Seminary), Bible; Eric Williams (Birmingham University) and Angela Aubry (Regent University School of Divinity), Diversity; David Cole (Eugene Bible College), Ecumenical Studies; Kimberly Alexander (Church of God Theological Seminary), History; Darrin Rodgers (Flower Pentecostal Heritage Center), Library & Research; Joseph Castleberry (Northwest University), Missions; Douglas Olena (Cardiff University, Wales), Philosophy; Oliver McMahan (Church of God Theological Seminary), Practical Theology/Christian Formation; Derrick Rosenior (Vanguard University), Religion and Culture; and Dale Coulter (Regent University School of Divinity), Theology.

Committee members from the WTS include Thomas Jay Oord (Northwest Nazarene University), Program Chair and Science and Theology; Joseph Bankard (Northwest Nazarene University), Moral Theology; Dean Blevins (Nazarene Theological Seminary), Practical Theology/Spiritual Formation; David Bundy (Fuller Theological Seminary) Intercultural Studies/Missions; Kristina LaCelle-Peterson (Houghton College), Culture and Theology; Scott Kisker (Wesley Theological Seminary), Historical Studies; William H. Malas (Eastern Nazarene College), Biblical Studies; K. Steven McCormick (Nazarene Theological Seminary), Systematic Theology; Christina Smerick (Greenville College), Philosophical Theology; and Don Thorsen (Azusa Pacific University), Ecumenical Studies.

Publishers, ministries, and other vendors are welcome to reserve display tables or sponsor events during the conference. Sponsorships provide complimentary exhibitor privileges and special recognition at the meeting. The Conference affords a rare opportunity to reach the largest gathering of thought leaders of the Wesleyan, Pentecostal, and Charismatic movements. For an information packet, call David G. Roebuck at (423) 614-8577 or send an email to droebuck@leeuniversity.edu. Please include your mailing address and fax and phone numbers in your phone message or email.

SPECIAL NOTE OF THANKS

They also thank Fortress Press for sponsoring the opening reception and Abingdon Press for sponsoring the Saturday morning break. A word of thanks is also due to Stephen Gunter, Gregory Jones, Randy Maddox, and staff of the Duke Divinity School for their work in organizing and hosting this joint meeting.

We are grateful to Bishop Harry Cohen and the choir of New Covenant United Holy Church in Burlington, NC, for their presence at our opening plenary session, and welcome them to this joint meeting of the WTS and SPS.
